

LAWRENCE BOEHM

GRADUATED FROM EDGAR HIGH SCHOOL IN 1958

Lawrence and his wife purchased his parent's dairy farm in 1963. The dairy operation continued until 1976 when the farm changed to heifer raising and ginseng. Larry continues to help his son Patrick with the beef animals and crops. Many local students and adults were employed picking weeds, berries and ginseng roots.

In 1976, Larry and JoAnn started a business venture with Leonard and Judy Berg and built the Edgar Bowling Lanes. The bowling alley provided fun for the local community and surrounding areas. The business was sold to the family of current owners in 1980.

In 1960, Larry started working with his father selling insurance. He purchased and renamed the agency Boehm Insurance in 1968. He purchased the old Bank of Edgar building and eventually provided office space for a new dentist in the Village of Edgar. The building was remodeled with the dentist office on the upper level and Boehm Insurance in the lower level of the building. Larry semi-retired in 2006 and sold the building and insurance agency to his son, Michael.

Lawrence Boehm is the son of John & Pauline Boehm. He and his wife, JoAnn, have three children, Michael, Lisa, and Patrick, and four grandchildren. Larry's siblings, children, and grandchildren all attended or currently are attending the Edgar Public Schools.
